Congratulations to the 2017 Excellence in Assessment (EIA) Designees!

Mon, Aug 21, 2017 - 08:30 am

Five colleges and universities were named the 2017 Excellence in Assessment (EIA) designees, recognizing their commitment to the comprehensive assessment of student learning outcomes as a means to drive internal improvement and advance student success: Bowling Green State University; James Madison University; Middlesex Community College; Rio Salado College; and Southern Connecticut State University. One institution, James Madison University, received the designation of Sustained Excellence in Assessment. Please join us in congratulating the 2017 EIA Designees! Application materials for the 2018 EIA Designation will be available in November.

THE PRACTICAL ALTERNATIVE TO WORK

NOT IMPRESSED

Principles of Local Practice

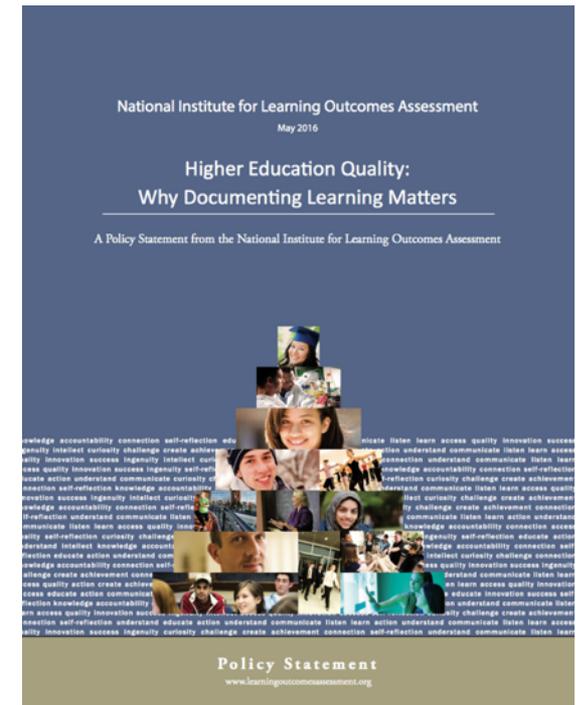

Develop specific, actionable learning outcomes statements.

Connect learning outcomes with actual student demonstrations of their learning.

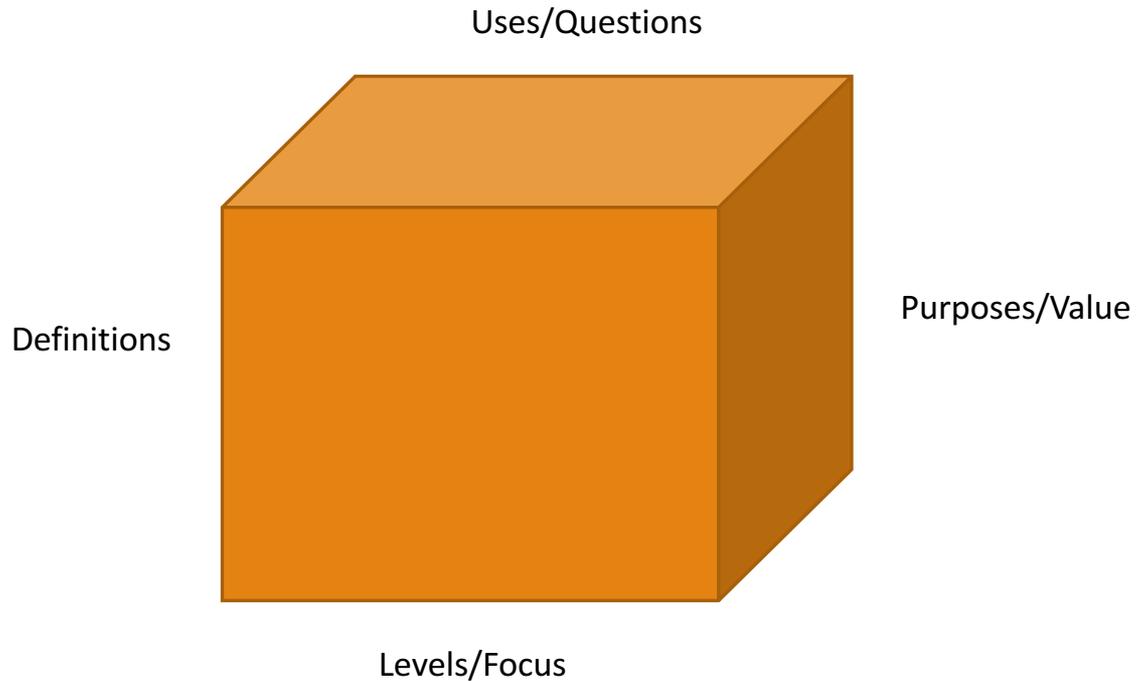

Collaborate with relevant stakeholders, beginning with the faculty.

Design assessment approaches that generate actionable evidence about student learning that key stakeholders can understand and use to improve student and institutional performance.

Focus on improvement and compliance will take care of itself.

Assessment Cube of Misunderstandings

Added Layers

Behind each side of the cube there are:

1. Theories about how students learn
2. Beliefs around what can be assessed
3. The “best” or “proper” means to assess student learning
4. How to warrant arguments about what students know and can do as a result of education

All with no agreements, leading to disputes built around unclear assumptions that impact practice with people dismissing other sides – remember assessment is a field and it’s a field that moves.

Teaching and Learning

Focus on pedagogy, understanding of student experience, informing program improvement, embedded in curricular design and feedback, builds student agency

Does continuous assessment in higher education support student learning?
~Rosario Hernandez

- Driven by faculty questions regarding their praxis – is what I am doing working for my students?
- Improvement oriented
- Focus on individual students
- Students as active participants – not something done to them
- Formative
- Feedback
- Collaborative
- Assessment for learning
- Adaptive and embedded

What does good assessment look like for us?

Why do we think that what we are doing, for these students, will lead to enhanced learning, at this time?

"I think you should be more explicit here in step two."

The Learning Systems Paradigm

Consensus-based

Through faculty-led conversations, reflections, and explorations with employers, alumni, students, and others, a shared understanding and consensus is reached on learning outcomes. This shared understanding serves as the foundation for revising outcomes for enhanced clarity and designing educational experiences.

Alignment

Using the agreed upon learning outcomes, faculty and staff align educational experiences throughout the institution for intentional integration, coherence, and fostering of multiple pathways. Alignment involves curriculum mapping, scaffolding, assignment design, mapping of career pathways, and co-curricular engagement.

Learner-Centered

The educational system reorganizes educational experiences around all students and their learning. Taking a student view includes consideration of issues of equity, learning-focused transfer, alternative delivery models, flexibility in offerings, integration of prior-learning assessment, ensuring stackable credentials, and building multiple pathways.

Communication

Communication and collaboration with students and other audiences through transparent discussions around the outcomes and educational system works to make the implicit explicit. Communication involves exploration and integration with advising, alternative transcripts, admissions, and employers.

Learning Systems Paradigm

Why do we need each of the four elements of the paradigm?

Transparency

Awareness of Learning Outcome Statements

Alignment

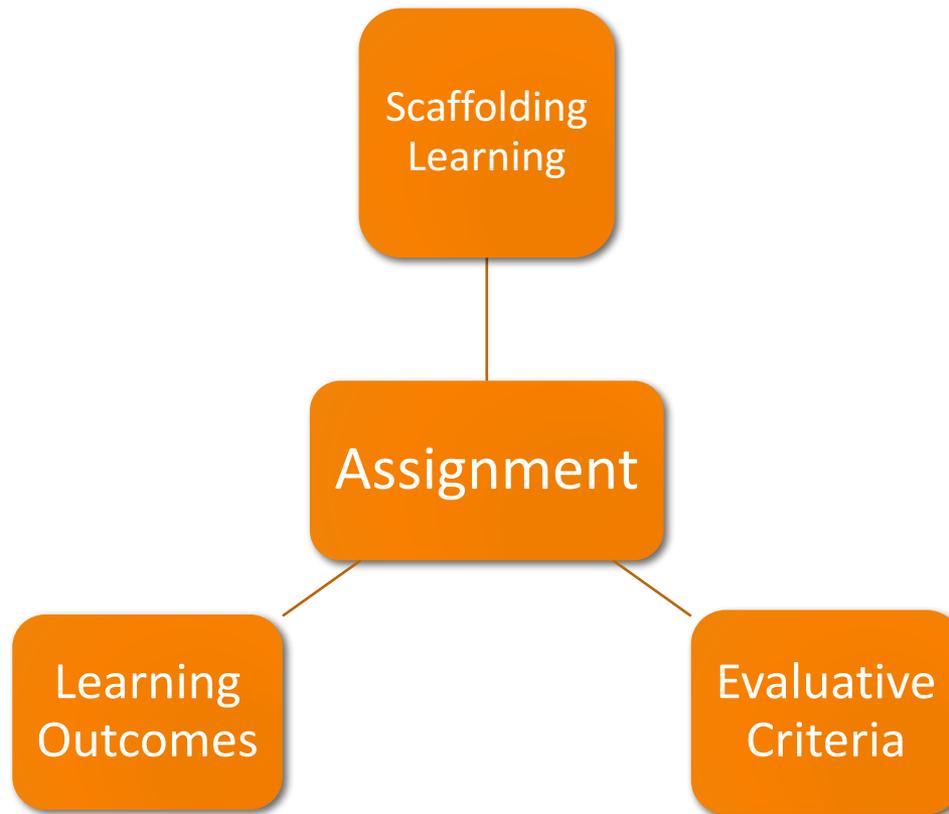

How do courses build towards mastery through repetition and increasing expectations for particular outcomes?

How do assignments and activities elicit student demonstrations of a specific learning outcome?

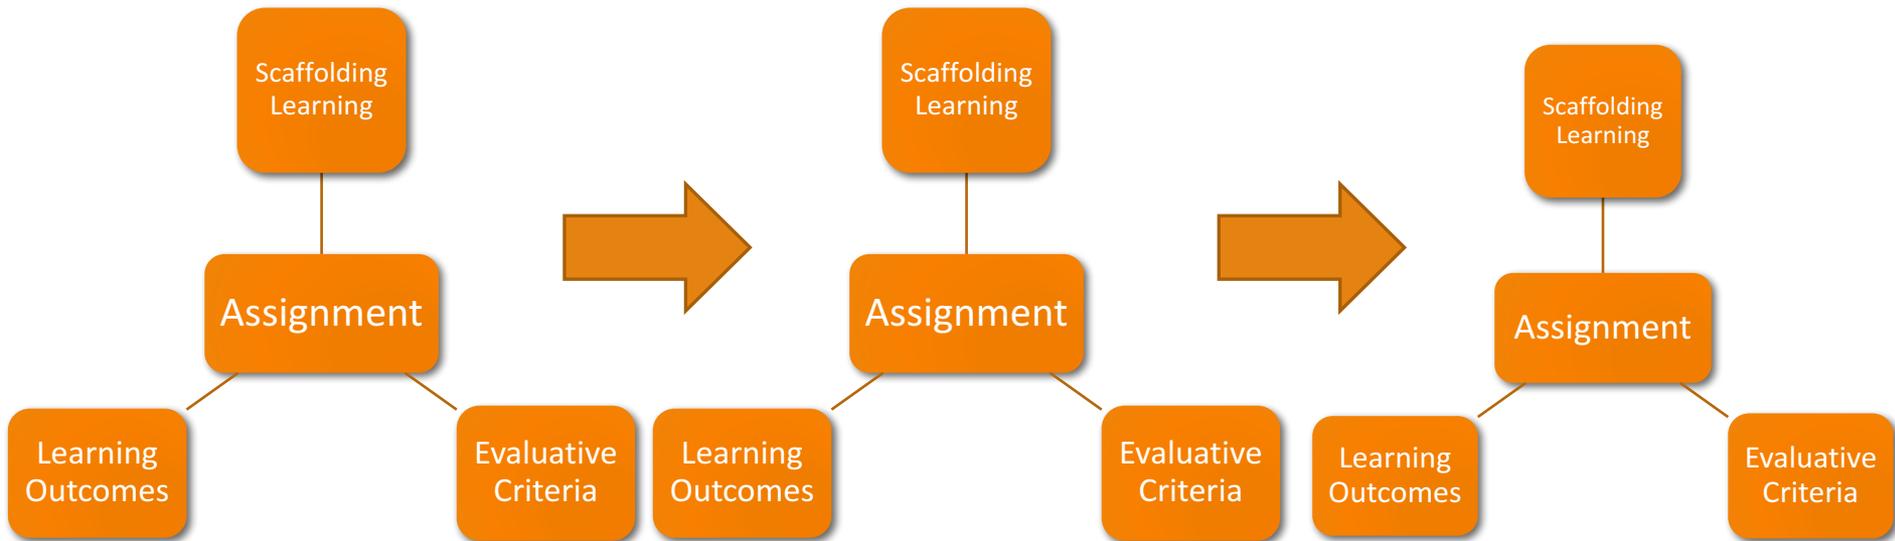

How do individual faculty contribute to this collective work in their courses?

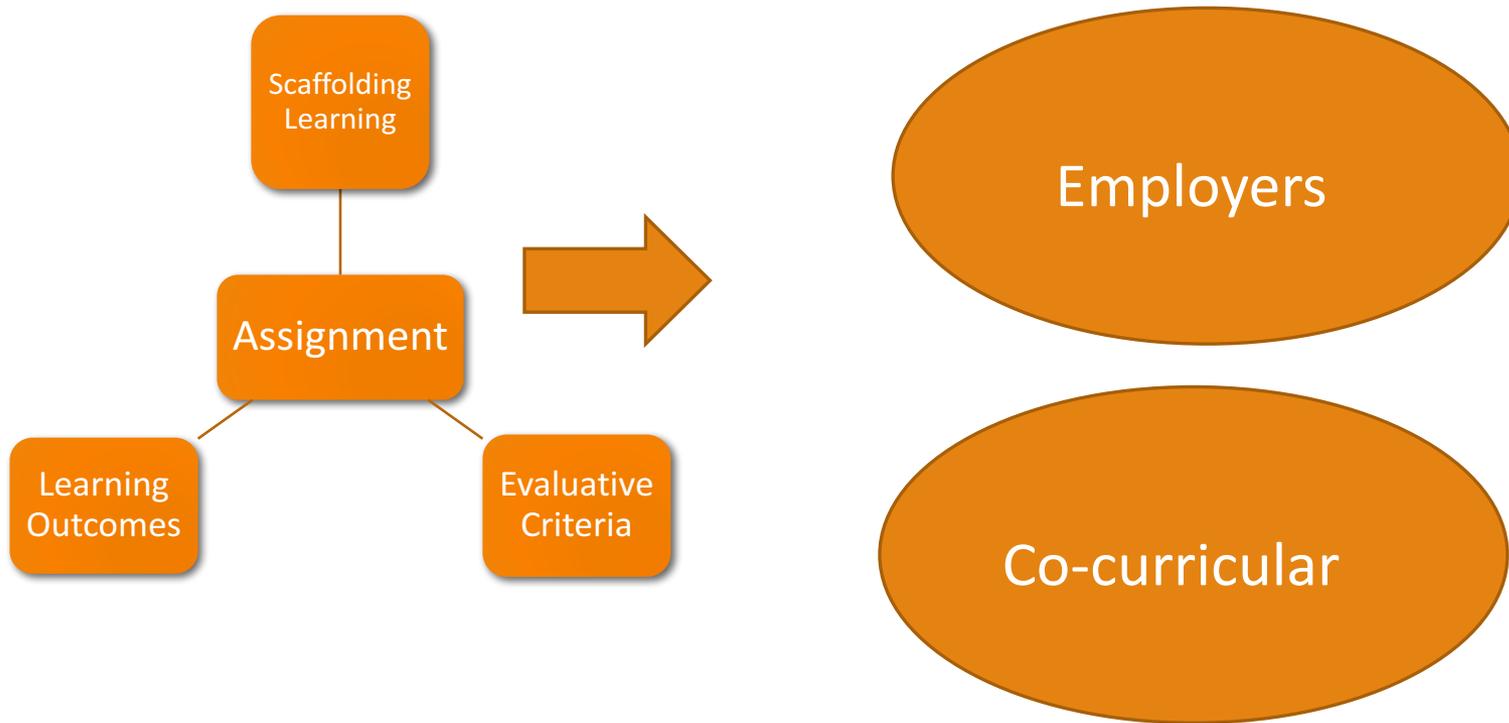

Alignment within courses

How assignments connect

Connections

Implications for transcripts, career development, and pathways

Transparency in Assignments

Transparency in Teaching and Learning: <https://www.unlv.edu/provost/teachingandlearning>

Purpose

Skills you'll practice by doing this assignment

Content knowledge you'll gain from doing this assignment

How you can use these in your life beyond the context of this course, in and beyond college

Task

What to do

How to do it (Are there recommended steps? What roadblocks/mistakes should you avoid?)

Criteria

(Are you on the right track? How to know you're doing what's expected?)

Annotated examples of successful work

(What's good about these examples? Use the checklist to identify the successful parts.)

Rubrics

Do we share our rubrics or criteria with students and actively engage them in the review process?

Rubric Criteria	Student Evaluation	Faculty Feedback
Rubric Content	Stipulate why gave score did	Faculty stipulate why gave score did
	Stipulate what they need to do to advance	Targeted feedback to improve

Timing and Placement of Assignments

Do we consider student movement through curriculum in terms of the placement of signature assignments? When do we give students feedback and do they have a chance to do anything with it?

Communicating our Assessment Work

Evidence of student learning is used in support of claims or arguments about improvement and accountability told through stories to persuade a specific audience.

Need to tell our story and help students tell theirs.

The Why

Toulmin (2003)

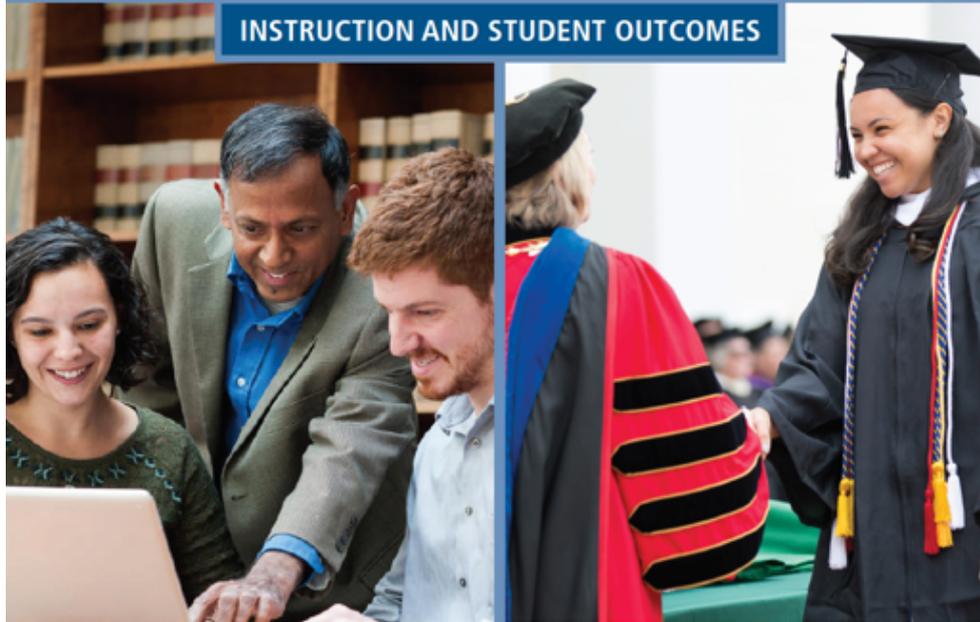

Connection Points

To ensure student success, it's how all of the pieces connect together to support collective development of active and engaged learners.
