Bookend 1: Group Project Peer Evaluation Form

Candidly and honestly evaluate the contributions made by each individual in your small group. Begin by writing the names of each group member including yourself in the spaces provided along the top of the matrix. Then, write the number that best describes each individual's performance on each of the five items below using this scale:

5=Outstanding 4=Good	3=Average	2=Poor	1=Very	Poor	0=None
NA
Contributions to content (well prepa	red for meetings, supplied information and i	ideas, reasoned critically)
Contributions to efficient group proc	edure
(setting agendas, keeping the group	on track, fulfilling task roles in the group)
Degree of cooperation (listened well	, was responsible, was group centered and minded) Degree of participation (attended me regularly, participated in planning, w reliable group member)
Overall value to the group			·

Now I want you to imagine that the total effort put out by your group to complete this project would equal a value of 100 points. Divide those 100 points up to represent the amount of effort contributed by each individual in the group. For example, if all of the work was completed by one person, that individual would receive 100 points, and all other group members would receive 0. If the work was evenly divided in a 5-member group, each individual would receive 20 points.

Bookend 2: Grading Criteria

Your application analysis paper is worth 100 points and will be graded according to the following criteria:

A paper will receive an A (90-100 points) if it:

- makes an insightful argument about the assigned topic,
- supports that argument with logical and well-developed arguments,
- supports the thesis and arguments with compelling evidence,
- insightfully uses concepts/theories from the textbook or class discussion to build the argument,
- is well written.

A paper will receive a B (80-89 points) if it has minor problems in any of the above criteria.

A paper will receive a C (70-79 points) if it has major problems in any of the above areas or minor problems in several of them.

A paper will receive a D (60-69 points) if it has major problems in more than one area.
